Dear Colleagues,

Today’s changing social, political, and economic landscape is driving business schools to challenge their core foundations and explore new horizons in business education. Appropriately, a city built on enlightenment, innovation, and creativity will host the 2019 International Conference and Annual Meeting: Edinburgh, Scotland.

Be inspired by the insights and successes of your colleagues, by discussions on social impact and digital transformation in higher education, and by the many opportunities you will have to engage with a global network of business educators.

We invite you to join more than 1,300 thought leaders, subject matter experts, and top educators from over 60 countries for ICAM in Edinburgh, from April 14 to 16, 2019. This dynamic, three-day event will foster the innovation, solutions, and connections that inform the future of business education and our roles within it.

A city of foodies, Edinburgh has more restaurants per head than anywhere else in the U.K., including four Michelin Star restaurants.
Lynda Gratton is a professor of management practice at the London Business School and founder of the Hot Spots Movement. She has written extensively on the future of work and the role of the corporation and her eight books have received various awards. Her most recent book ‘The 100-Year Life’ was shortlisted for the FT Business Book of the Year. Lynda has served on Prime Minister Abe’s “Council for Designing 100-Year Life Society.” Gratton is a fellow of the World Economic Forum, and has chaired the WEF Council on Leadership.

Howard Yu is the LEGO professor of management and innovation at the IMD business school in Switzerland as well as director of its signature program, the three-week Advanced Management Program (AMP), an executive education course. In 2015, Yu was selected by Poets & Quants as one of the World’s Top 40 Business Professors Under 40, and in 2018 he appeared on the Thinkers50 Radar list of 30 management thinkers “most likely to shape the future of how organizations are managed and led.” Yu received his doctoral degree from Harvard Business School.
Scotland is an enlightened nation, built on innovation, creativity, and warm, friendly people. We have a history of entrepreneurs and engineers who have changed the world, along with a long heritage in financial services where we remain one of Europe’s most important financial centres. It’s fitting that ICAM 2019 has chosen Edinburgh for its next conference.

— Professor John Finch, Head of Adam Smith Business School, University of Glasgow
